A Series of Lectures on Bioethics

The world of bioethics confronts today's technological and scientific achievements. Scientific progress improved the quality of human life, but this progress corresponds to moral vagueness. In the science of genetics, for example, significant discoveries and solutions were advanced which led on the other hand to many complications affecting human life. Therefore, this series of lectures is intended to bring together our alumni to reflect on modern issues in Bioethics under the guidance of an expert.

Dr. Ohly will give a series of lectures that will shed light on the latest and most important ethical questions on biomedicine.

Lectures will be given for 4 weeks in a pace of 2 lectures weekly, Every Monday and Thursday from 3:00 p.m. till 4:30 p.m.
